A Foundation Deck is the “running story” of a project, new product, business idea, etc. It contains the core Why & What (and maybe a bit of How) about the project/product/business.

The product/business that your foundation deck is about is You.

In 7-12 slides*, describe this product/business:

what's it best used for?

I am best used for working hard since that is all I have ever had to do in my life, helping others and the overall idea of wanting to succeed in something since I know I can, and hopefully being able to contribute to society in some way shape or form.

My value that I can provide is something along the lines of being someone who is very organized and structured, someone who listens, someone who has the ability to be serious in certain situations, and someone who tends to have a good memory, which can be useful in some scenarios.

who is the optimal user of this product?

A company or organization that is looking for employees who can bring a lot to the table in terms of overall dependability and trustworthiness.

why does it exist in the world?

I exist in the world to serve a purpose and do something or create something that is of benefit to not only myself, but also to others as well.

how will the world be different as a result of using this product?

I will change the world due to the fact that I bring a unique skillset to the table and feel as though anybody would be lucky enough to have me work with them or for them.

are there any user warnings about this product?

Given the fact that I did struggle with processing and comprehension when I was younger and still do today to some degree, sometimes others need to be a little patient with me if I take longer to complete a task or am just not understanding something, but I have to be honest, I have come a long way.

what is the future R&D plan for this product (i.e., how will it be further developed)?

I will do the best that I can when it comes to continuing to learn and grow so that I can be a better person overall both technically and professionally.

Have the look and tone/feel of the document match the message. If your product is all about fun, energy, etc., a deck that is a series of bullet points doesn't align with you message.

If your resume is the left-brain, just-the-facts, machine spec-sheet version of who you are, this document is the more right-brain, subjective, narrative. Tell your story, let go of how good or right it is.

AVOID the temptation of thinking you have to focus on your skills or your experience. Sometimes what we've become good at out of necessity or genetics isn't what the best use of our 'product' is.

The Future is a story that must be told before it can be lived.

7-12 is a guideline from experience. Don't get too hung up on length, use as many or as few slides as you need to tell the story. Also note that the foundation deck can include an audio track; i.e., you can record a presentation to go along with the slides if you feel that would be useful.*
